ADDITIONAL REMARKS by Physician.....

Verdict Favors Ball; Cites "Excusable Circumstances"

A coroner's jury Tuesday determined that Randy Ball, 26, Orofino woods worker, was responsible for the death of Rudolph A. Uremovich, 44, after a bar altercation last Thursday at Eddies Bar.

The verdict read by Foreman Vernon W. Butler said "death was from brain damage by the involuntary act of Randy Ball under excusable circumstances."

Testimony of 14 witnesses brought out that Rudy Uremovich had previously been ejected by the tavern proprietor, Clinton Philpot, after starting an argument with Ball and calling him a "Chicken .... S.. .. . ."

Had Scuffle

Ball said he had offered to settle the argument outside the tavern and walked out the back door but Rudy did not follow. When he came back in, the argument and a scuffle resumed and Uremovich was escorted out by Philpot.

About five minutes later the victim came back into the tavern and advanced toward Ball who said he saw him enter and stood up to "avoid being clobbered."

Witnesses said Ball advanced a step or two and struck Uremovich with a left punch knocking him down. Ball said he heard Rudy's tin hat strike the tile-covered concrete floor. Testimony was contradictory about how far each man had advanced.

Philpot said he and Dave McEntire dragged Rudy over to a raised musicians stand and applied ice to the back of his neck but could not revive him and blood started seeping from his nose.

Ball offered assistance and with McEntire took him to CV hospital. He said the injured man mumbled a little but did not regain consciousness. Uremovich died at 9 p.m. Friday, 24 hours after the incident.

Philpot testified that Uremovich was often smart alecky and argumentative when he had been drinking. He said the victim had come back into the tavern with Ed Carr next door tavern owner, who bought him a beer and left in 3 or 4 minutes. Carr said Rudy had been quarrelsome in his Orofino club and he had asked him to leave.

Ball said that Rudy sat down by him and said, "I'm the toughest man that ever wore a pair of black boots." Their first scuffle started when he tried to pull away, Ball added.

Other witnesses were Don Youngman, Mrs. Elda Wood, Charlotte Warmdahl, Fritz Kauffman, Bill Stewart, Dr. Calvin Reber, Bill Wineteer, Albert Nelson, Jack Mills, Robert Kline, Dave McEntire and Bernard Bloom.

Members of the jury besides Butler were Martha Una, Emma Ladd, Mrs. Art Westfall, Earl Williams and Lyle Mullikin.

Coroner Larry D. Wunderlich was in charge of the inquest, his first such inquiry since taking office last January. He was assisted by County Prosecutor Ralph H. Haley. The latter said on the basis of the testimony he felt inclined to go along with the verdict and not file further charges. He expressed a belief, that in any event any criminal conviction would be difficult to obtain.

Uremovich was born Oct. 22, 1921 at Roundup, Mont., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Uremovich. He had lived briefly at Spokane and at Orofino and Weippe for the past 10 or 12 years.

Surviving besides his parents are two brothers and a sister, William of Portland, Edward and Mrs. Jay Brown of Salt Lake City.

The remains were shipped to Roundup, Montana by the Gilbert chapel Monday for funeral services today.
